These references may not be understood in England, but they are here. Carvajal and Gullen were two Republican Deputies, who periabed in the insurrection in Andalusia. "shot in action," say the authorities, "murdered in cold blood after defeat, and without trial," say their friends. Bohorques was the hall-witted boy shot by order of Col. between this and the Presidential election, having for its object the re-election of Gen. Grant, may be regarded as a sure thing. Glimpses of the features that are likely to enter into this necessary Radical measure have already been disclosed to us by the current proceedings of the two Houses at Washington. It is, perhaps, idle to speculate as to these features just now. They will be stringent enough to answer the purpose, as far as that can be

The principal strength of the Bonarange family is and has always been in the eastern and central provinces—that is, in those which are now most largely occupied by the Prussians. The exact strength and temper of the Imperial party must therefore be well known to the Germans. What they would sacrifice, and what they could perform, in the event of their chief's hard the same and What they would sacrifice, and what they could perform, in the event of their chier's returns to power, are no doubt already ascertained. The French may be unfitted for a republican govern-ment; but they are infinitely more unfitted for a tame monarchy. The nation confor a tame monarchy. The nation consists, in fact, of two great parties, one of which addres imperial splendor, while the other yearns for the purer luster of a grand and beneficient republic. To neither party could the Orleans princes and the dull prospect of a monarchy be acceptable. We think it possible—more, we rist in the hope—that the people of France, under fair circumstances and

In our day, the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, the House of Representatives and the Supreme Court, has reversed the rule, and such men naw find it impossible to die poor. Even Gen. Grant himself, occupying as he does aposition which has heretotore furnished the most abundant facilities for doing it, couldn't die poor to save his life.

The Farmington Republican says the Courier Journal of the country of the country of the courier of the distinct of the nation so yearns. That is at present out of the question we admit, of course. Nay, there is yet another parallel which is perfect in its details and embodies all that we have ventured to establish and illustrate. OLYMPUS took METIS to wife; as soon as he saw that she was pregnant its shortcoming; but we do this in no dis-paraging sense, nor out of any splendic, and, still less, factious spirit. Our object and, still iess, factious spirit. Our otject is to call the attention of members to the condition of affairs and their own relation thereto, and with the view, if possible, of working a result which, in our judgment, is as much the interest of the Legislature as it is the need and wish of the masses. In saying that the Legislature is out of favor we mean simply to lay down a factas were we mean simply to lay down a factas. as soon as he saw that she was pregnant he ate her up; thereupon he grew with child himselt; and thus brought forth Pallas out of his head in armor. This allegory is but a foreshadowing of the politics of the present day. The Republican party took the Government to wife; as soon as it found that it was worth destroying it gobbled it up; and thence is to spring revolution and a change of system, the overthrow of the Constitution and the advent of centralization, the precursor of a military dictatorship and vor we mean simply to lay down a fact as the basis of our suggestions. The assertion might be taken as an attack it we made it without qualification. But we qualify it by observing that its course has dissatisfied the people only so far as it has gone, and by the additional remark that it is not too late for amendment. We believe that there is time yet for it to accomplish a work of imminent public necessity, as well as to produce a great conand the advent of centralization, the pre-cursor of a military dictatorship and imperialism. This is our reading of an-cient history and philosophy. It might be extended, made easy and adapted to the understanding of the moderns.
